

Christian Gomes is presently a junior at East Side High School but in only three short years, he has had a tremendous impact both academically and scholastically. Christian was recognized this month by our superintendent for his PERFECT SCORE on his New Jersey Learning Assessment Language Arts. He got the highest possible score on this test, and we are all extremely proud of this achievement. Currently Chris is ranked number one in his junior class with all AP, IB and Honors classes. Christian also gives back to his school and community where he is involved in so many clubs and activities.

As a junior, he is already Co-President of East Side's Student Council where he was the treasurer in his sophomore year, he is very well liked and respected by his peers. He is also on our Swim and Golf Teams, participates in our Smart program and is involved in Rutgers' Mini Med program. Christian would one day like to become a medical doctor.

With all of these accolades, it is his deep commitment to his education and his high moral fiber that makes him so special to all of us at East Side. His kindness and compassion for his fellow classmates is superior. So, congratulations to Christian Gomes for this achievement and for being a terrific person and for making our school a better place.
