Avoid Summer Slide

Research tells us that students need to read during the summer to maintain their independent reading levels. In the fall, the impact of a student not having read during the summer months, combined with the fact that many of his or her new classmates did read during the summer, may result in a reading ability gap that could potentially widen each year, making it difficult for students to keep up with grade level reading expectations.

SCHOOL BEGINS ON SEPTEMBER 3, 2019
2019-2020 SCHOOL SUPPLY LIST ON THE BACK

When your IReady lessons are complete, you may come in to find out the name of your homeroom teacher for the 2019-2020 school year.

Third Grade Summer Reading

The summer is here! Day trips to the beach, family cookouts in the back yard, and long afternoons in the park are just a few examples of how we celebrate the warm weather and extra free time. In addition to spending some much needed time outdoors, be sure to provide opportunities for READING. Opening up a book stimulates the imagination, provides new ideas for summer time fun and ensures that the child continues to practice the skills that he/she worked hard to master over the school year.

For the following assignment, students may read the books they brought home from My Very Own Library or another book of their choosing. Each week, after reading, students should complete at least three of the activities below in a notebook. Also attached is additional list of suggested books for your child's grade level. Happy Reading!

Use R.A.C.E to answer the following questions about a book you've read: What is the setting of the story? How would you describe the main character/s and why?	Read a nonfiction text, identify 3-4 text features that the author used to present the information. Write a paragraph or more explaining how it helped you understand the text.	Write persuasive letter to a teacher encouraging them to read one book that you read this summer.	Select one character from a book you've read from the list. Brainstorm 5 physical and 5 character traits about this character. List on a separate sheet of paper.
Compare and contrast two characters from a story you read. Provide evidence from the text to support your thoughts.	Brainstorm and re-write a new ending to a story you've read this summer.	Read two or more books from the same author. Compare and contrast both texts.	Complete the reading log for all of the books you read this summer.
