Examples based on the data above:

Student #1: Grades were copied from the gradebook and stored into Historical Grades of 0 for E1. On 5/11/2021, the teacher changed the grade to 100 in her gradebook. It looks like no change in Student #1's Historical Grades. If this is not fixed, student #1 final report card will show 0 for E1, even though the teacher changed the grade to 100. Student #1's final average and GPA will be affected but not reflected on the report card.

Student #3: Grades were copied from the gradebook and stored into Historical Grades and student #3 was passing with a 67 but then the teacher changed the grade 5/4/2021 to 52. When student #3 final report card goes out, the 52 will be calculated into the final average because that is what is in the teacher's gradebook. One of these grades is incorrect.

Student #7: Grades were copied from teacher gradebook into Historical Grades and the student had a grade of 64, however the teacher on 5/11/2021 changed the grade to 86 in their gradebook and nothing was updated in Historical Grades. One of these grades is incorrect.

This displays the difference of what is in the teacher's gradebook currently and what is in the Historical (stored) Grades currently.

GREEN means the teacher's current gradebook grade is HIGHER than the Historical (stored) grade

RED means the teacher's current gradebook grade is LOWER than the Historical (stored) grade

0 means both the teacher's current gradebook grade and the Historical (stored) grade reflect the same grade
